Hi Dimitra,

Thanks for your email.

As I think we have used the later submission of an operational noise management plan before, and there is uncertainty over the usage of the facility I think that represents an appropriate position here.

With regard to necessity of conditioning and other tests I think it is the same uncertainty that is the main justification.

In terms of further detail, something like:

At least three months before commencement of operation of the proposed development a noise management plan shall be submitted to the council for approval. This shall show how noise impacts will be controlled to achieve consistency with noise policy in the form of the Noise Policy Statement for England 2010, the National Planning Policy Framework and the council's policies on residential amenity. The submission shall have due regard for guidance including BS 8233 (2014) and BS4142 (2014).

I trust this assists and all being well resolves this one for now at least.

Regards

Phil
